The refurbishment will be carried out in phases, with the fully renovated hotel due to be completed in October 2026. The hotel will be open throughout the refurbishment.

The first authentic grand hôtel in Finland, Hotel Kämp, embarks on a comprehensive refurbishment. Throughout this transformation, the entire hotel's ambiance and interior will be renewed, technology will be modernized, and the overall guest experience will be elevated to new heights. The refurbishment will be conducted with utmost respect for the hotel's history and character, ensuring that it evolves to meet the expectations of both classic luxury hotels and the demands of today and the future.

1887

Carl Kämp, born in 1848, moved to Helsinki at a young age and started to make a name for himself in the restaurant industry. He quickly became a well-known and respected restaurateur. Carl Kämp felt that the new capital city was missing a Grand Hôtel and set on to design, fund, and build a modern and continental hotel in Helsinki.

AS PUBLISHED IN THE DAILY NEWSPAPER UUSI SUOMETAR, 1.11.1887

Hotel Kämp, Helsinki, Pohjois-Esplanadikatu 29, in the city center. The hotel features 80 well-appointed rooms from 2 marks a night upwards. Each room has a vestibule and a bed-chamber. Restaurant, banqueting hall, dining-rooms, reading room, bathrooms, elevator, telephone. All languages spoken. The hotels' own Omnibus will collect guests from the Central Railway Station and from the Steamship Quay.

Helsinki, 1. November 1887. Carl Kämp

Since opening its doors in 1887, Hotel Kämp drew the attention of the local press with a precious interior that had never been seen in Finland before – the grande mirrors of the banquet hall, bronze candelabras, and rugs and curtains from St. Petersburg created an international and luxurious atmosphere. Venetian style chandeliers acquired from Berlin operated with both electricity and gas and guests, who at the time had only been accustomed to gas operated lights, described the lightning to be marvelous, as if they were bathing in a sea of light.

Hotel Kämp quickly established itself as the center stage of the political and cultural scene of Helsinki. In addition to the Finnish dignitaries, international guests found their way to Hotel Kämp. The local press published a daily list of visitors arriving to Helsinki and Hotel Kämp's list was always the longest and diverse – guests arrived via train from all over Finland, and cruise ships took over the Helsinki harbor with guests from the Nordic countries and Germany.

In keeping with the European Grand Hôtel tradition, the entertainment on offer at Hotel Kämp was cosmopolitan and high-class. Already by the early 1890s, Kämp had become Helsinki's leading light entertainment arena, with only the best artists being permitted on its stage. Hotel Kämp's variety shows included flamenco dancers from Spain, comedians, acrobats, and an Italian baritone, whose bravura was yodeling. As today, the performances were advertised in the press and they were also written up by the critics. Consequently, word traveled fast and the best and most popular shows would be sold out for weeks on end.

Before modern technology molded the media landscape, cafés and restaurants were the location where the latest news and gossip were exchanged. Kämp became a focal meeting point for daily news and Päivälehti (now Helsingin Sanomat) used to start their days with meetings in the Hotel café.

In November–December 1939, the struggle of “gallant little Finland” against the mighty armies of the Soviet Union was front-page news around the world. Europe was not yet quite in flames, but the fighting on the freezing-cold Finnish front was anything but pretense. Finland's official communiqués on the war were published each evening at 8 PM, and they were pored over intently in the Kämp press room.

Majority of the foreign correspondents waged the Winter War in the Kämp Bar, converted into an air-raid shelter. Kämp Bar had become a meeting-point for Finnish journalists, people from the Foreign Ministry, and other familiar faces about town. It was not just the working pressmen who came to Kämp in search of news and refreshments.

"Aino, I am a composer, not a fortune teller."

JEAN SIBELIUS IN THE 1890s

when his wife, Aino, asked how long the trip to Kämp would take.

SIBELIUS AND THE SYMPOSIUM CIRCLE

While variety shows rocked the walls in Kämp Upstairs, a small, but nevertheless artistically significant band of supporters of The Young Finns was embracing the boulevard culture and urban nightlife under the crystal chandeliers on Kämp's ground floor.

Around the tables in Kämp there was general discussion of "an artistic spring", which led in turn to a proclamation for a national programme in the pictorial arts.

An idea of "Finnish Art" was created, in which the subjects of the art would be consciously extracted from the nation's history, its people, and the unique natural surroundings. The inner circle included the young and talented painter Axel Gallén and his closest friends, such as composer and conductor Robert Kajanus and the future Finnish national composer Jean Sibelius.

In addition to the trio of Gallén, Kajanus, and Sibelius, the evening sessions in Kämp were attended by other young artists. The group represented the coming cultural elite of the nation, and the members were very conscious of their position as harbingers of change.

The artists themselves began to see their social get-togethers as a Symposium circle, where alcohol kindled earnest discussions on love and beauty.

The Symposium circle was at its most active from the fall of 1892 through to 1895. Sibelius himself reflected on the Kämp years:

"Our gatherings were extremely rewarding. Our imaginations were free to soar, our thoughts to play. We contemplated everything between heaven and earth, problems were ignited and sparked, but always, always in a positive, liberating atmosphere.

We felt a need to till the soil, to make all aspects and all spheres open to new ideas. The Symposium evenings gave me much, at a time when I would otherwise have been more or less alone."

Hotel Kämp has a long and proud tradition of art and culture. Today, Finnish graphic art is on display in every hotel room and both suites and meeting rooms are named after notable Finnish artists.

The most modern meeting and event space at Hotel Kämp is called Symposium, once again offering a space for new ideas and ideologies to be born.

DINING AND CULINARY EXCELLENCE

Das in dinner with music

Dinners with musical accompaniment were arranged even in Carl Kämp's time. Programmes that have survived from that era indicate that the tafelmusik fare was typical for the late 19th century: light classical pieces by Rossini, Bach, Gounod, and Wagner among others. The programme often featured brass ensemble compositions, opera overtures, romances, marches, or airs.

Overlooking Esplanade Park, the winter terrace is the perfect spot to savor reimaged classics, enjoy fine wines, and experience a subtle spark of culinary magic.

The menu is rooted in storytelling, created by reviewing over 90 menus from 1890 till today, to understand the dishes that were traditionally served at Kämp. It is designed to reflect the past while meeting the expectations of today's and future guests.

On the menu: an experience that feels both familiar and entirely new.

KÄMP BAR

Iconic Kämp Bar continues its long-standing role as a central meeting point for both locals and international guests. The bar's concept revisits the tastes of early 20th-century Helsinki society – champagne, fine European wines and signature cocktails – infused with a modern Nordic touch through local ingredients and flavours. Kämp Bar welcomes walk-in guests. Full À La Kämp food menu also available in the bar.

Its most distinctive feature is the Lemon Table, a historic seating area once reserved for Kämp's regular guests, including prominent Finnish artists and authors. As a reminder of their legacy, the name remains engraved on the table. The signature cocktail Lemon & Punsch stands out as tribute to the original Lemon Table. Another house signature, Kämp Punch, blends birch and blueberry in homage to Finland's Independence Day on December 6th.
